Helping the Poor

Have you ever won an award? People win awards for all sorts of things. There are sports trophies, blue ribbons for spelling bees, medals for bravery, silver cups for bowling, and certificates for good work. Jeanne Jugan was given an award for her work in helping the poor. Jeanne and two friends started a religious order of women to work with the poor. If you can solve the acrostic, you will learn the very fitting name given to these women.

Write the answers to the picture clues in the blanks, then put the letters over their matching numbers in the answer. If you don't know an answer, go on to the next one and then come back. Many letters are repeated and will give you clues to the answers you don't know.
