Pentecost Sunday

May 20, 2018

It's pretty easy to be amazed at the account we hear from the first reading on this feast. We can easily associate, based on this account, signs, miracles, even what we might call "strange occurrences," with the arrival of the Holy Spirit.

And why wouldn't we? Jesus foretells us of the things that would come to pass, from well before his passion and death, which he also foretold to the Apostles, up until the moment he ascended. Such prophecies shouldn't be so surprising to us, as they clearly were to the twelve of Jesus' closest friends and followers.

Surely, he gave us advanced notice that, even in our day, we would see things the world cannot explain ("And behold, I am with you always, until the end of the age" Matthew 28:20). Ought we to be so skeptical that such things are yet happening today? Now, certainly there is a difference between unexplained and unexplainable events, and that difference shouldn't scare us or even make us doubtful. Indeed, "God has visited his people (Luke 7:16)."

What, then, shall we make of our own slowness to believe in the incredible? More to the point, what do we have to lose, placing our trust and hope in God?

The Apostles faced death for their faith. Bravely hoping in God's promises, they carried out and bore witness to the power of God. In the name of Jesus, they cured the sick, gave sight to the blind, raised the dead and, as we hear today, spoke boldly to the world of the "kerygma" -- the fact that "this Jesus, whom you crucified, has been raised (Acts of the Apostles 2:36)." Not only this, but they did so, shockingly, in such a way that the crowd of people from diverse places and distinct languages heard and understood what this band (according to Acts of the Apostles 2:15, there were 120, including the Twelve and Mary, in the upper room) was shouting about in their midst.

As a result of what happened that day amongst the crowd, thousands chose to put their faith in Christ.

Let us entertain, then, the fact that that same Spirit of God is present today and has not and will not leave the Earth. Place yourself in the account we have heard, not so much that you are there, but consider that that moment is now. What would it mean if God sent a new Pentecost today?

I know that, in my own life, I have seen miracles. I have seen God moving amongst the crowd. I have heard men and women laugh, through weeping, of how good God had been to them, of the sin they left behind and of the irreplaceable love they found in him. The zeal of the Apostles is not for fanatics, but for those who have tasted and seen that the Lord is good.

Truthfully, the holiest people I know wanted from God only that he would come, and that he would never leave them again. These people became evangelizers. They became men and women who were happy to share the Good News with others. They were sent, and by simply bearing witness to what they had seen of God in their own lives, others have come to believe for themselves.

All of this is to say nothing more than this: God holds in reality a plan for your life, and in the Holy Spirit, he is eager to live out that plan in you.

The time of Pentecost is now fulfilled, and just as it was when the earliest Christians gathered, may this be our turn in the upper room. May we receive for ourselves those tongues as of fire.

PASTORAL MINISTRY

FOLLOWING JESUS

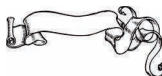

The Church is born at Pentecost! The disciples were gathered together, and Jesus entered that place with the greeting, "Peace be with you." He breathed on them and invited them to receive the Holy Spirit. Each of us receives that same Spirit at our Baptism and at our Confirmation. Let us allow the Spirit of God to guide us in all areas of our lives.

BOOK GROUPS

Small faith groups are a wonderful way to form relationships of support and encouragement with others who share your love of Jesus. Book study groups are a terrific way to start. If you have thought about gathering friends in your home or local venues but don't know where to begin, we can help! Fr. Steven has put together a spiritual reading book study guide, and we can recommend books. The titles by Fr. Jacques Philippe in our resource center are just right for this type of study. For further book suggestions or a copy of the reading guide, contact Lisa Amos at 651-905-4304 or lamos@stpetersmendota.org.

SINCERE SYMPATHY

St. Peter's Parish extends its sympathy to the family and friends of Rosemary Mossberg. We invite all to join us in praying that God may make her a sharer in eternal salvation.

MARRIAGE ENRICHMENT

If you have always wanted to go on a marriage enrichment weekend but have found it too difficult to get away, a Worldwide Marriage Encounter Weekend is coming to you. A non-residential Weekend is coming to Faithful Shepherd Catholic School in Eagan on July 27-29. The Weekend format is identical to the traditional Weekend that is normally held at a hotel or retreat center. The only difference is that at the end of the day, the couples will go home and return the following morning. This is an incredible opportunity to experience the original faith-based married enrichment program. For more information or to register for this Weekend, go to www.wwme.org or call 612-756-8720
